

Our Chemical Safety System is Badly Broken

The current federal law is outdated and ineffective

Of the more than 80,000 chemicals currently in use, the US Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has ordered chemical manufacturers to test only 200 chemicals for health and safety threats. The EPA has only banned or restricted 5 chemicals in 35 years under the Toxic Substances Control Act.

This record of inaction has put the health of children and all Americans at risk

It's time to fix our chemical safety system